Since the 1960's spin art can be seen in the works of certain contemporary artists.

During the 1960's Alfons Schilling was one of the first artists to become interested in spin art, instead of installing it vertically he did it horizontally.

From 1968 to 1973 the french artist Annick Gendron used industrial wheels to spin paint on plexiglass.

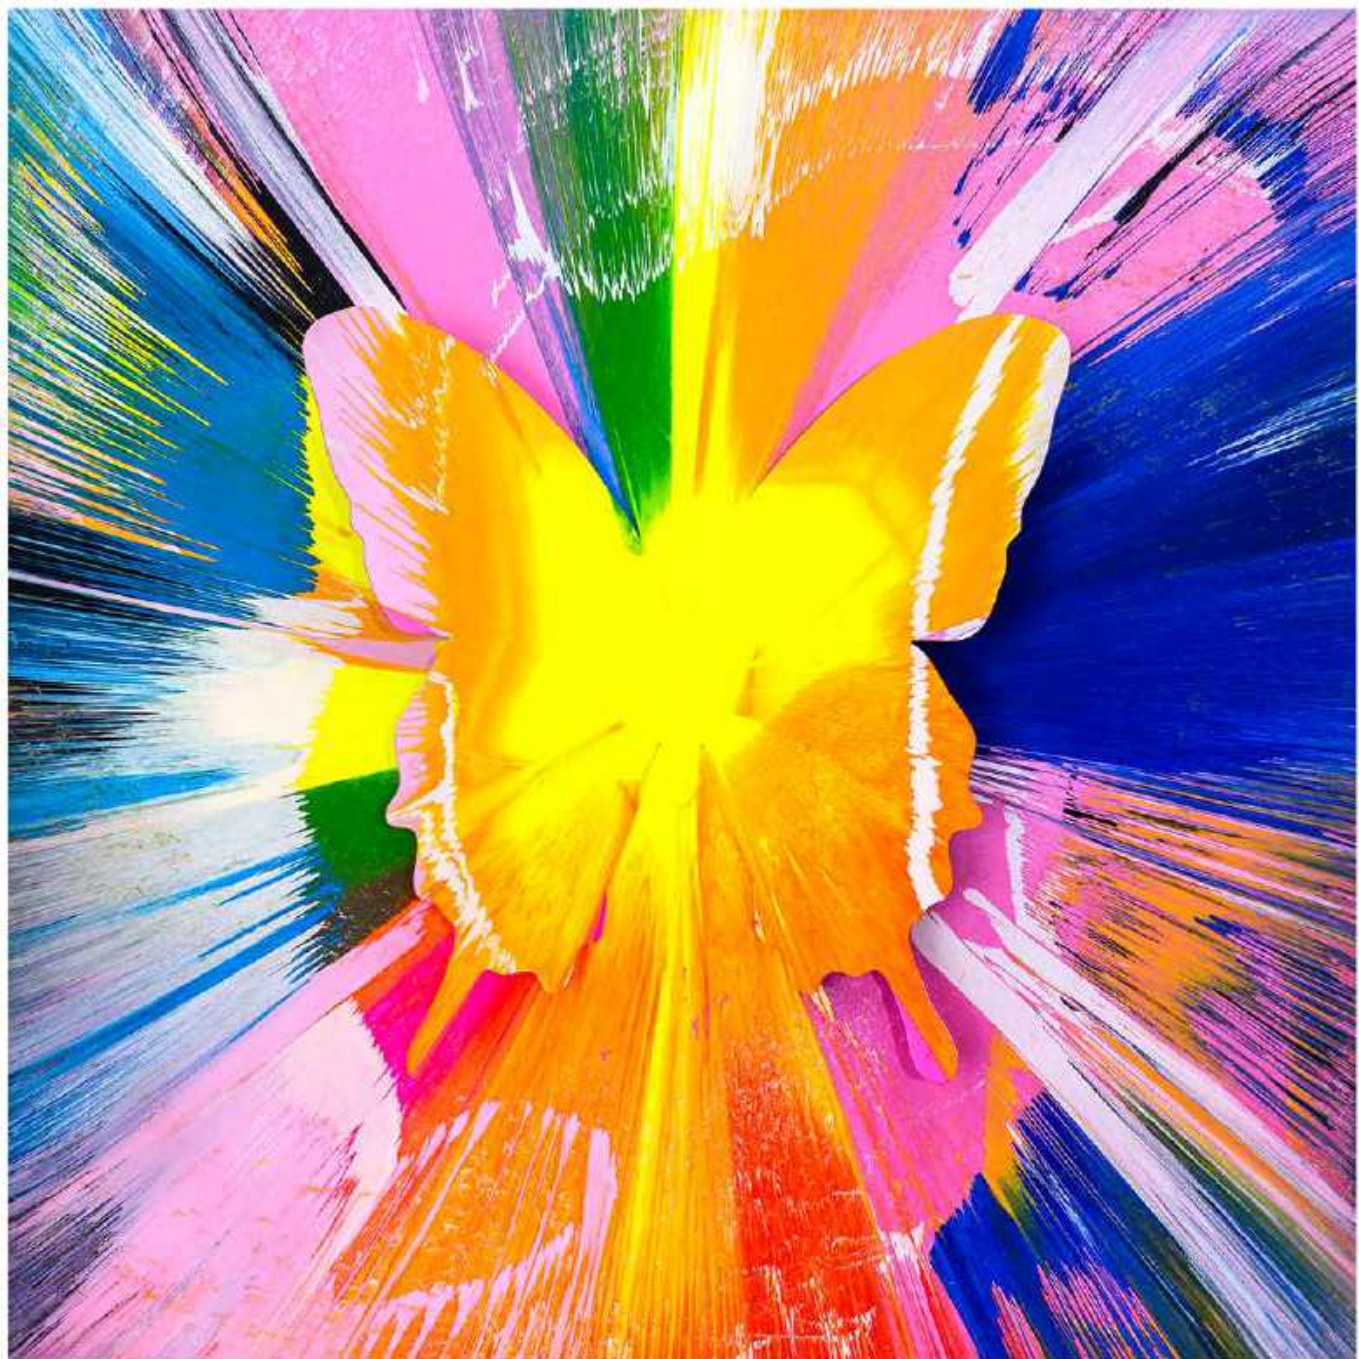

From 1995 the british artist Damien Hirst started a series of spin painting. He was inspired by memories of the technique of spinning wich he saw as a child on the BBC's Blue Peter.

In 2019, i began my own study on spinning paint, adding a 3 dimentional layer by placing an aluminum butterfly in the center of the artwork.

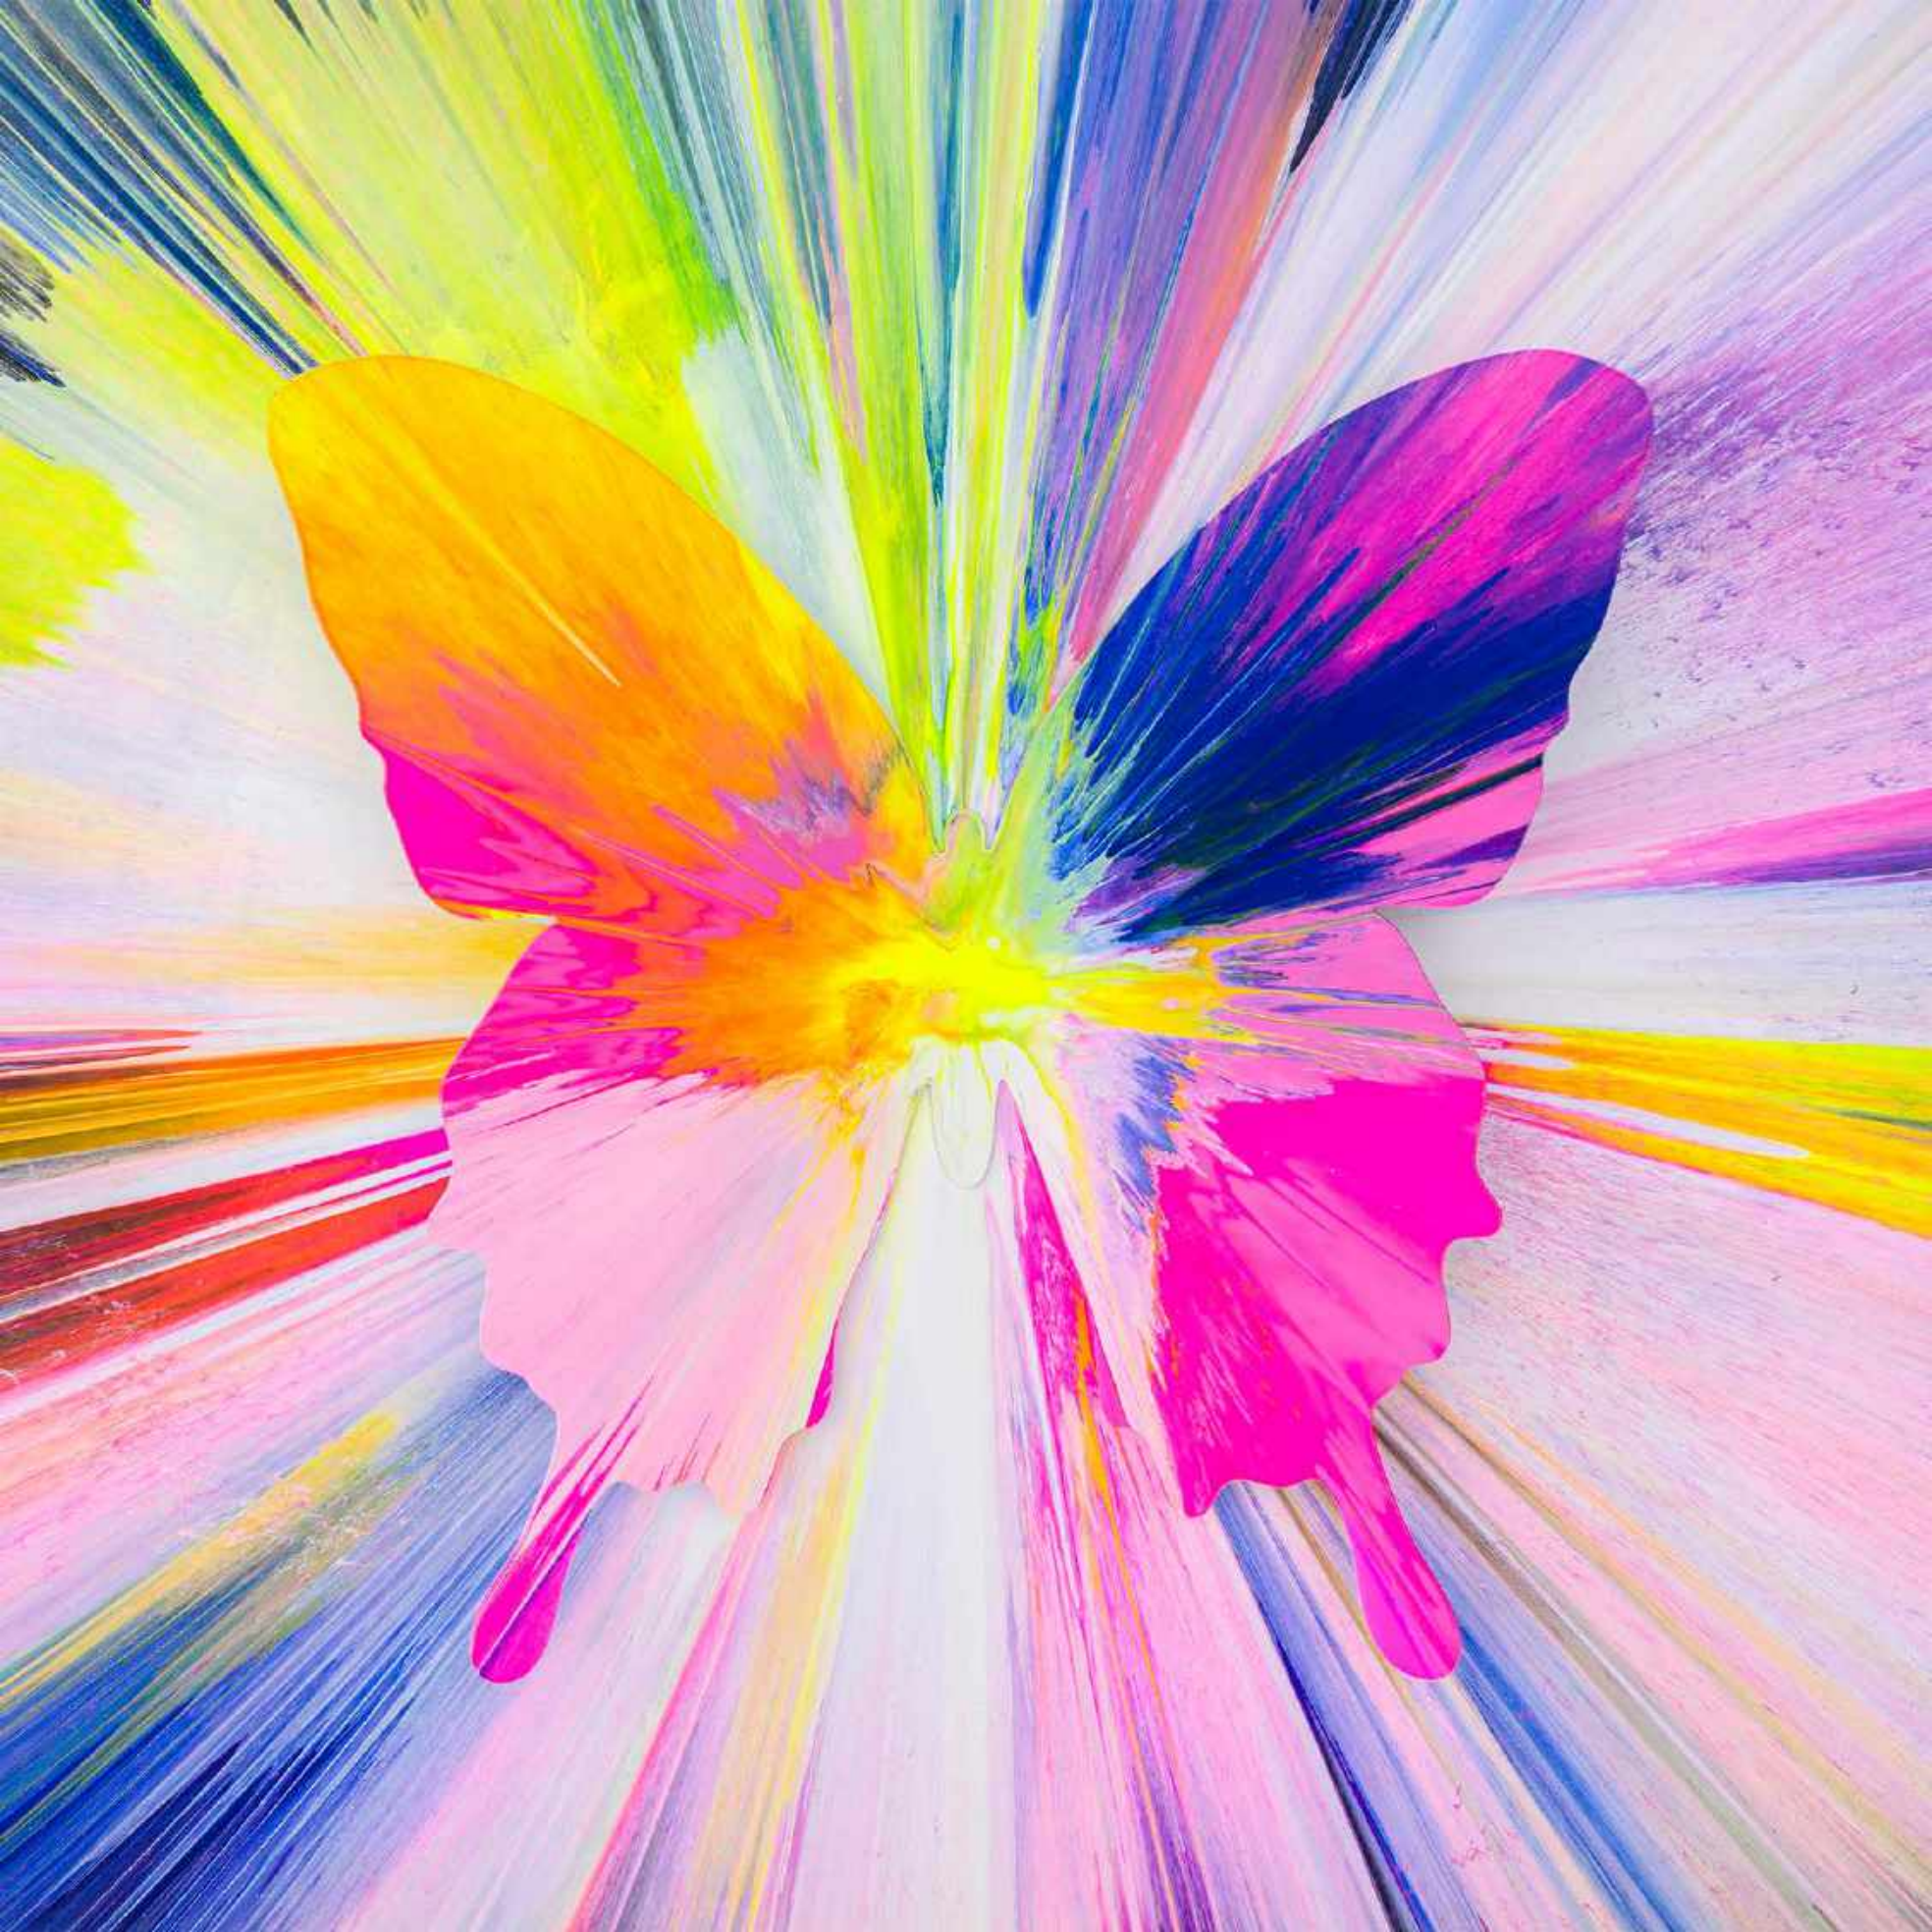

Just a blank canvas, splashes of color and a controled spin. The metamorhosis is quite magical, yet real.

For me, butterflies represent freedom, beauty, colors, lightness, and serenity.

They are present in most of my works, surrounding women or muse.

They delicately touch, connect, and symbolize a woman's sensitivity.

Butterflies are fragile and need to be protected with a strong shield.

C'est pour quoi, les femmes et papillons se complètent parfaitement.....

This piano was made for the beautiful charity Sing For Hope.

Sing For Hope harnesses the power of the arts to create a better world.

Their creative programs bring hope, healing, and connection to millions of people in hospitals, care facilities, schools, refugee camps, transit hubs, and community spaces worldwide.

It's the last day of the year, i get a text from my friends, the Houston brother: " Where u at! "

Me: " On my way to your grand opening brother! "

Here I am driving my way to Las Vegas with my beautiful girlfriend, Autumn.

But I can't end this year without doing something creative!

So I decided to do a stop on the road, about 50 miles from Las Vegas, in this abandoned house on the side of the road.

Loaded the truck with a bucnh of butterflies, tools, spray gun, and pink paint.

Few hours later we were drinking champagne at my friends new club.

Life is chill.

Life is good.

Blue has no dimensions, it is beyond dimensions, whereas the other colours are not... All colours arouse specific associative ideas, psychologically material or tangible, while blue suggests at most the sea and sky, and they, after all, are in actual, visible nature what is most abstract.
